General Election

INDIANA BUSINESS FOR RESPONSIVE GOVERNMENT

The non-partisan political action program of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce.

A report to supporters and members of Indiana Business for Responsive Government (IBRG), the Indiana Chamber of Commerce, and allied organizations. This report will be updated as additional election results are received in the hours and days following.

Tumultuous Political Environment Nets Solid Election Wins

Indiana Business for Responsive Government (IBRG), the non-partisan political action program of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce, scored a very successful general election. 70 of 74 IBRG-endorsed candidates facing opposition were victorious. Twenty-one (21) additional endorsed candidates did not face general election challenges.

Considerable excitement and upheaval in the Indiana electorate this mid-term election certainly created rough waves and realignments around the state. However, in the end there were few ultimate changes in the political status quo for both candidates and seats held by the parties.

Republicans swept all statewide races by significant margins, led by an unexpectedly large double-digit margin victory by Mike Braun for the U.S. Senate seat.

In the General Assembly, Republican majorities took a relatively modest hit, but not enough to lose super-majority status. In the House, three (3) incumbent GOP legislators were defeated, resulting in a net breakdown of a 67-33 GOP majority.

In the Senate, the Republican super-majority was reduced by just one seat to 40-10 with the defeat of notorious Sen. Mike Delph (R-Carmel). Although the final tally changed little, the Senate battlefield was intense and involved more competitive races than seen in the last decade.

It's very hard to look at the 2018 midterms in Indiana state legislative races as a "status quo" election, even though the number of seats changing was minimal. Significant shifts in the electorate, competitive districts and regions, created a tumultuous battlefield.

The 2018 mid-terms in Indiana appear to be an extension of the 2016 election changes and the realignments underway here. Generally, those areas of the state where President Trump won by a safe margin in 2016 performed even stronger for the Republican candidates this year. Those areas where President Trump lost, or it was very close in otherwise GOP areas in 2016, such as white-collar suburbs, growing and diverse urban neighborhoods – there were significant increases in Democratic votes.

In other words, those areas that were not competitive for either party in 2016 have become even less so. Republican areas became stronger. Democrat areas became stronger. However, the changes were not enough to result in many defeats of incumbents, as these partisan performance shifts are not large enough to tip very many races in strong GOP areas. Republicans were able to dominate the Indiana election battlefield again in 2018.

The political parties and the battlefields here in Indiana and across the country are in the middle of a realignment. That much is clear.

Summary of Election Results

Indiana House of Representatives

Republicans lost three (3) seats in the House to see their reduced to 67-33 majority (pending final vote counts in three races), but still maintaining their “quorum-proof” majority with room to spare. Fourteen (14) seats in the House were “open” (no incumbent on the ballot) and in every one of these the party of the previous legislator managed to hold the seat with little effort.

Like in 2016, most of these races were centered in districts picked-off by Republicans in their march to dominance since 2008 that have remained competitive. Suburban areas were particularly competitive this year, as realignment of the electorate continues.

Top, Most-Competitive House Races where IBRG-endorsed candidates won:

House 4 Rep. Ed Soliday defeated Frank Szczepanski (pending results)
House 5 Rep. Dale DeVon defeated Donald Westerhausen
House 74 Rep. Steve Bartels defeated Larry Kleeman
House 81 Rep. Martin Carbaugh defeated Kyle Miller
House 89 Rep. Cindy Kirchhofer defeated former legislator John Barnes

House Incumbents Defeated:

House 15 – Rep. Hal Slager (R-Schererville) defeated by Chris Chyung (D-Dyer)
House 19 – Rep. Julie Olthoff (R-Crown Point) defeated by Lisa Beck (D-Hebron)
House 24 – Rep. Sally Siegrist (R-West Lafayette) defeated by Chris Campbell (R-Lafayette)

Indiana State Senate

Senate Republicans fought off a number of very spirited challenges from Senate Democrats this year, losing only one (1) seat to result in a 40-10 super-majority. That one loss was controversial Sen. Mike Delph (R-Carmel), defeated by J.D. Ford (D-Indianapolis) in a rematch of the 2014 race. It was arguably one of the biggest Senate campaign battlefields in the last decade.

Top, Most-Competitive Senate Races where IBRG-endorsed candidates won:

Senate 31	Sen. Jim Merritt defeated Derek Camp
Senate 38	Sen. Jon Ford defeated Chris Gambill
Senate 46	Sen. Ron Grooms defeated Anna Murray
Senate 26	Mike Gaskill defeated Dave Cravens in this open seat

IBRG was also very supportive of Linda Rogers for the open Senate 11 seat she took from Sen. Joe Zakas in the primary election.

In Senate 25, Democratic Leader Tim Lanane faced a strong challenge from trial lawyer Zaki Ali (R-Anderson) with strong backing by the Senate GOP caucus, but Lanane prevailed.
